Dear Sir:

My mother passed away a few months ago and I am the executor of her will. Except for a few bequests all of her property is left to me. She has a number of shares of stock which I wish to have transferred to my name. What papers are necessary to do this? I have the court paper confirming me as executor. Would copies have to be made of this and are any other papers necessary? I suppose your firm could handle this business. I expect to be in Boston sometime this fall.

Very truly yours,

HW:JG
